

On Tuesday, April 15, 2003, I received 2 obscene through the relay operator. It is unlawful to place harrassing or obscene calls; however, the At&T relay supervisor told me they were mandated by the FCC to place such calls. There is no way to trace or block these calls because they came from the relay operator. This is discriminating to those of us not hearing or speech disabled. The relay operator should be required to advise that they are unable to place such calls rather repeat the garbage.

Please review such mandate.

Thank you,

Bernadeane Edwards
